Inclusive Elections 2024

7th December 2024 Election Monitoring Report

Compiled by the Ghana Federation of Disability Organisations (GFD)

Foreign, Commonwealth & Development Office

March 2025

Statement by the National President of GFD

The 2024 general elections marked a significant milestone in Ghana's journey toward inclusive democracy. This report, compiled by the Ghana Federation of Disability Organisations (GFD) with support from the Foreign, Commonwealth & Development Office (FCDO), highlights both progress and persistent gaps in ensuring equal electoral participation for persons with disabilities.

While 79% of polling stations were accessible, regional disparities, such as Western North's 57% accessibility rate, reveal uneven implementation of inclusive practices. Positive strides, including priority seating (93% of centres) and tactile ballot jackets (82%), were overshadowed by challenges like inadequate signage (32% lacked clear information) and inaccessible voting booths (27% unsuitable for wheelchair users). Notably, security presence (97%) and orderly conduct (97%) fostered a safer environment, yet incidents of violence (6%) and privacy concerns during assisted voting demand urgent attention.

GFD commends the Electoral Commission and partners for their collaboration but calls for stronger enforcement of accessibility standards, targeted training for polling officials, and nationwide adoption of universal design principles. As we approach future elections, let this report serve as a blueprint for action, ensuring no citizen is disenfranchised by disability.

1.0 INTRODUCTION

Ghanaians went to the polls on December 7th 2024, to elect a president and members of parliament. This was part of the regular cycle, where every 4 years, the electoral commission of Ghana (EC), under the 1992 constitution, oversees the entire process from registration of new voters through the conduct of polls, results collation and declaration of winners in both the presidential and parliamentary elections. To ensure maximum participation of persons with disabilities, the Ghana Federation of Disability Organisations (GFD) undertook concerted efforts to advocate for the meaningful participation of qualified voters with disabilities in the 2024 general election. These efforts included holding engagement meetings with the electoral commission to promote the adoption of inclusive practices that would enable persons with disabilities to have access, conduct of accessibility audit of registration centres during the limited registration exercise, training of organisations of persons with disabilities (OPDs) and persons with disabilities to monitor the processes and make useful recommendations for improvements, monitoring of the election on the 7th of December 2024, etc.

The following report highlights the main issues emerging from the GFD's comprehensive assessment of the 7th December general election. The federation, with support from STAR Ghana Foundation and the UK Foreign and Commonwealth Development Office (FCDO), trained and deployed election observers across the 261 districts, municipalities and metropolitan areas as election monitors. Over 90% of the observers were persons with disabilities. The rest were made up of advocates on disability inclusion, board members of the GFD, regional OPD leaders, project officers and volunteers.

1.1 Methodology

The federation deployed over 230 observers on the day of voting across the country. These observers were identified and nominated by the National and regional leaders of the 13 OPDs under the umbrella organisation. Further details of the methodology included:

- Candidates were screened for the basics: level of education (basic); they should have access to an Android phone (assistants were provided for)
- Online training was conducted for all observers, who were equipped with the online reporting tool (Kobo Toolbox), to enable them to undertake monitoring and submit reports in record time.
- The observers were deployed to work in their localities, where they are closer to the voting centres where they cast their votes.
- Emphasis was placed on each election observer having to spend quality time for the observation of proceedings at the places where they were assigned. They each spent a minimum of 5 hours at a voting centre to not only assess the physical accessibility of the centres but also assess how the process, officers, party agents and the general voters either facilitated or hindered easy access for persons with disabilities.
- Each election observer did two long observation sessions (Morning session, 7 AM – 12 PM, and afternoon session, 1/2 PM till close of polls). This afforded them enough time to monitor events and provide a fair assessment of the situation regarding the participation of persons with disabilities.
- An option was provided for the observers to observe the results collation process at the constituency and regional collation centres, emphasising they prioritise their safety and security, as it was anticipated that the collation centres could be potential hotspots for election-related violence.

- Reports were submitted in real-time, with real-time feedback provided. However, in exceptionally few cases, some reports that could not be submitted on the same day were submitted in subsequent days.
- A virtual situation room to monitor the events, receive feedback on challenges and provide support as far as possible.
- All the observers carried appropriately issued EC identification tags.
- The monitoring took place in 417 centres across the 16 regions.
- Data quality checks were being conducted as and when the reports were submitted so that immediate feedback could be given to the monitor to fill in gaps identified in their report or provide clarifications when needed.

1.2 Limitations and challenges

The main limitations of the monitoring have to do with the fact that the exercise could not extend to all the voting centres in each constituency. Some observers struggled with reporting due to the malfunctioning of their electronic devices (mobile phones). But overall, the process was successful, and no incident of harm to the monitors was reported.

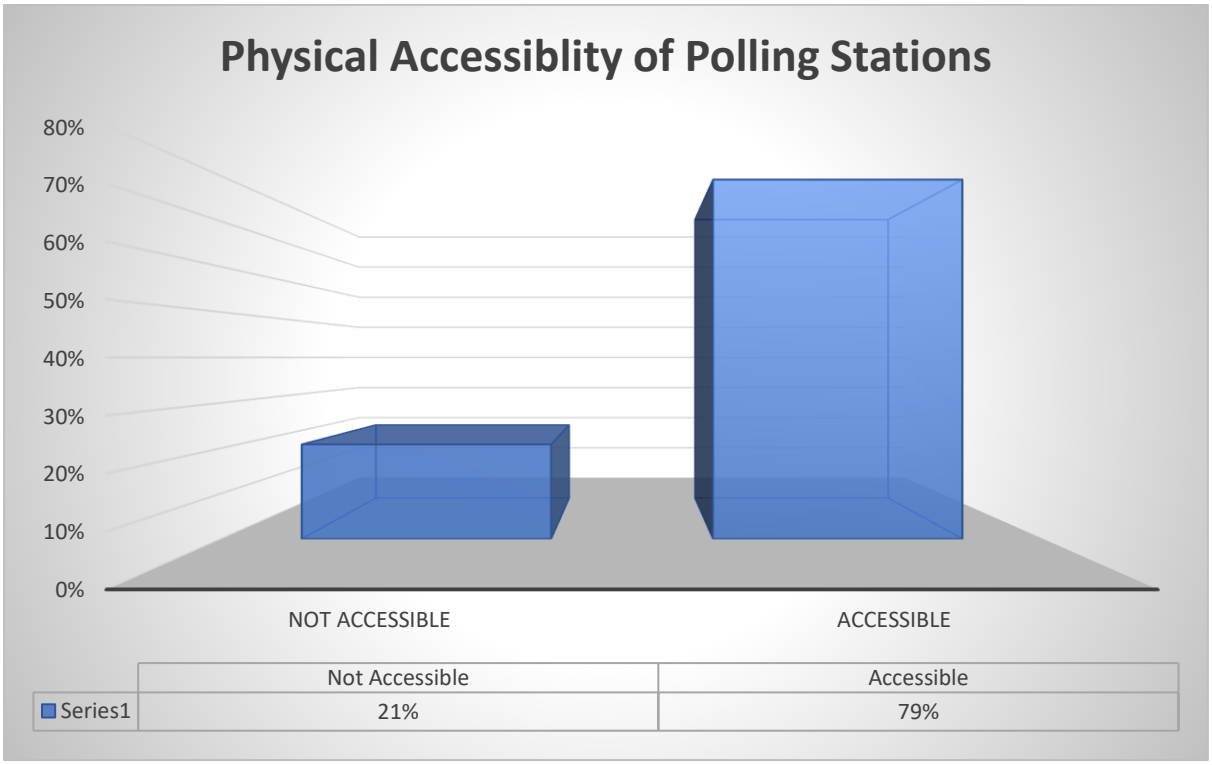
1.3 Coordination

The entire monitoring was led and coordinated by the Monitoring, Evaluation and Research (MER) department of the GFD. The lead researcher and director for the activity was Mr Moses Fordjour (Head of MER department). Operational and logistical coordination was by Mr Gideon Segbe, assisted by Richmond Dadzie, Kwansema Panford.

2.0 ANALYSIS OF THE OUTCOME OF MONITORING OF THE ELECTION

2.1 Accessibility of the Polling Station

Regarding accessibility, the monitors observed and, in most cases, experienced the nature of accessibility of the environment, including the physical structures of the places where the voting centres were located. The chart below shows a graph of the proportion of polling stations assessed to be either accessible or inaccessible. The analysis shows that 21% of centres were deemed inaccessible.

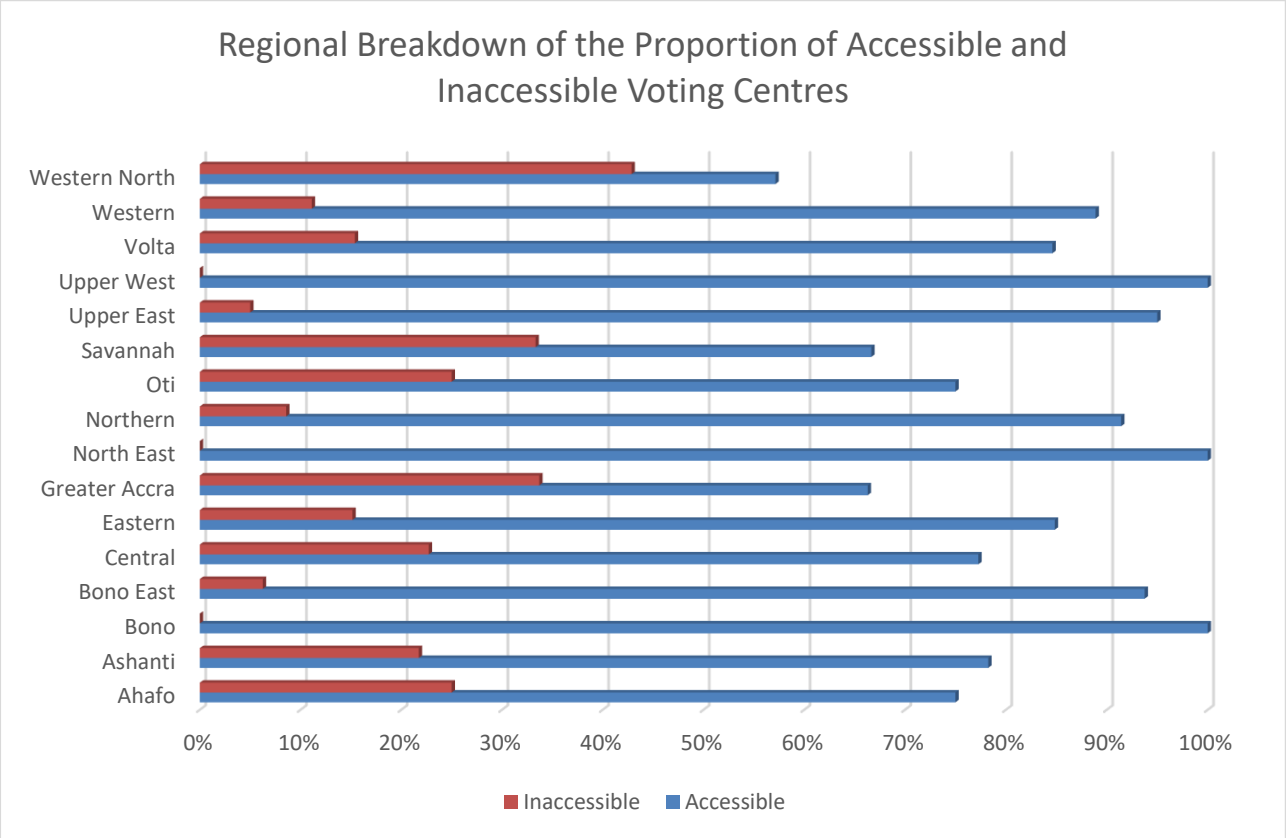


The regional breakdown of the percentages of accessible and inaccessible centres has been provided in the table below. It shows that the region with low accessibility is Western North (57%) followed by Greater Accra (66%). Regions with higher accessibility rate are the Upper West, North-East and Bono regions.

Region	Accessible	Inaccessible
Ahafo	75%	25%
Ashanti	78%	22%
Bono	100%	0%
Bono East	94%	6%
Central	77%	23%
Eastern	85%	15%
Greater Accra	66%	34%
North East	100%	0%
Northern	91%	9%
Oti	75%	25%
Savannah	67%	33%
Upper East	95%	5%

Upper West	100%	0%
Volta	85%	15%
Western	89%	11%
Western North	57%	43%
	79%	21%

The data has been presented graphically in the bar charts below.



2.1.1 Analysis

The observers noted several positive aspects of the general accessibility of the polling stations as follows:

- ✓ Flat and Level Ground: Most observers mentioned the polling centres were situated on level, plain, or flat ground, making it easy for wheelchairs and mobility devices to navigate. Example: "The centre is on a low ground with no obstacles. It's a flat ground and free from steps."
- ✓ No Physical Barriers: the centres were free from gutters, steps, potholes, and rocks. For example: "The place is devoid of stairs, stones, and other hindrances."
- ✓ Wheelchair Accessibility: Spaces allowed free wheelchair movement, and ramps were provided at some locations. For example: "Accessible ramps were available for wheelchair users, facilitating easy movement."
- ✓ Support from Officials: Polling officials and volunteers assisted elderly and disabled voters. Helpers were allowed, and seating was provided for comfort. For example: "Officials allowed helpers to assist elderly and visually impaired voters who requested assistance to be supported in casting their ballots."

- ✓ Inclusive Voting Materials: Provision of tactile jackets for visually impaired voters and written messages or sign language for the deaf. For example: "Ballot jackets were offered to help blind voters cast their votes with ease."
- ✓ Spacious and Organised Setup: Polling stations had wide entrances and were arranged to accommodate Persons With Disabilities comfortably. Example, "The centre is spacious with a wide entrance and clear pathways."

2.1. 2 Key Accessibility Challenges

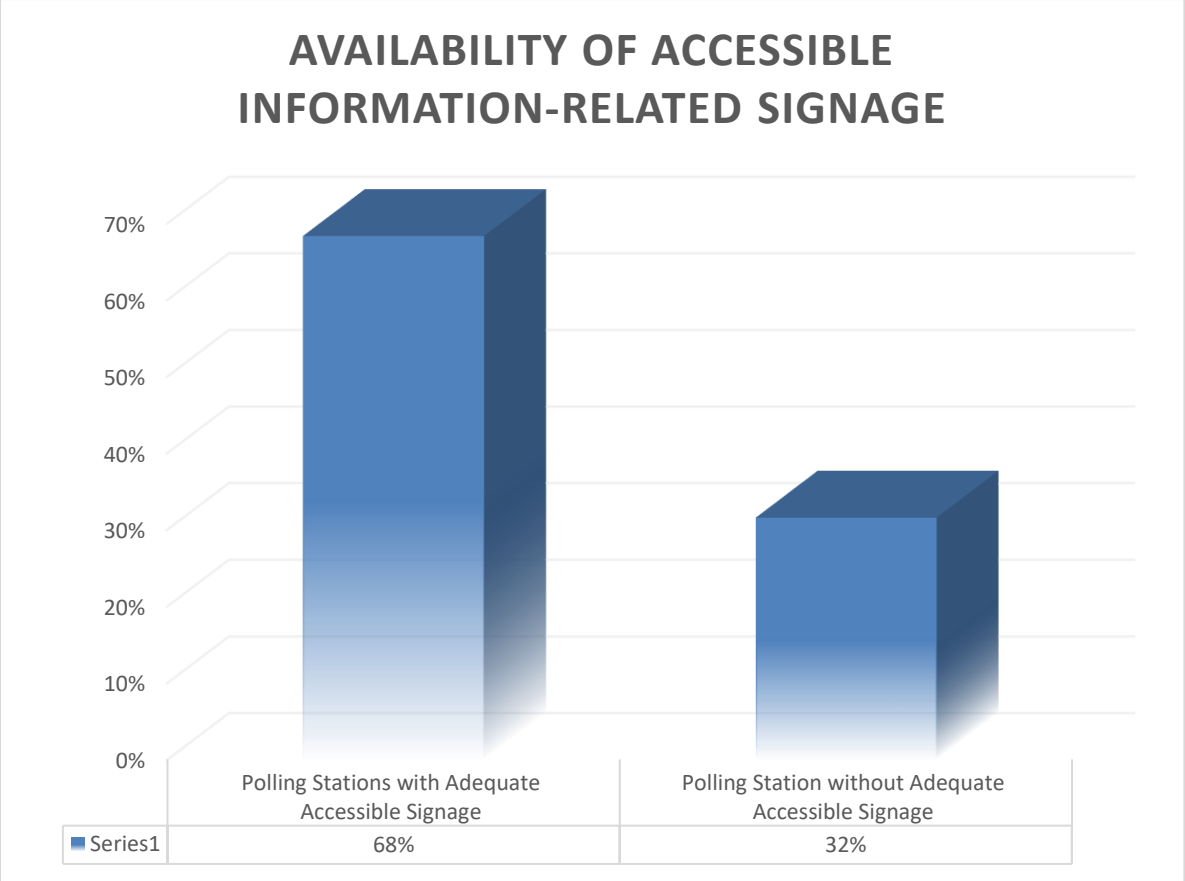
For the 21% of polling stations that the observers have noted were not accessible, the key challenges noted there were. Despite the general accessibility of most polling centres, there was still more room for improvement in those marked as accessible. Among the key observed challenges are the following:

- o Presence of sandy or dusty grounds: Some polling centres had sandy or uneven grounds, which could impede accessibility. "The place is, however, sandy and a bit dusty."
- o Placement of Voting Materials: Ballot boxes and voting screens were sometimes placed too high, making it difficult for little people and those who crawl.
- o Ramps and Pathways: While ramps were provided in some centres, their narrow pathways were mentioned as needing improvement. "The voting booth was moved to a higher place with a ramp, but the space was too small for wheelchair users."
- o Narrow Entrances: Some entrances are too narrow for wheelchairs to pass through comfortably.
- o Security: A few stations reported no security presence, raising concerns about voter safety and support.
- o Accessibility for Specific Disabilities: Limited provisions for certain disabilities, such as for persons who crawl or are of short stature. "The ground is accessible, but it lacks arrangements for those who crawl."

Among the noteworthy examples of best practices are: the availability of accessible ramps, tactile jackets, and sign language interpreters. Others include allowing helpers to assist elderly and disabled voters who requested help; creating spacious and clear pathways free from physical barriers; and the provision of seating arrangements for persons with disabilities to rest while waiting to vote.

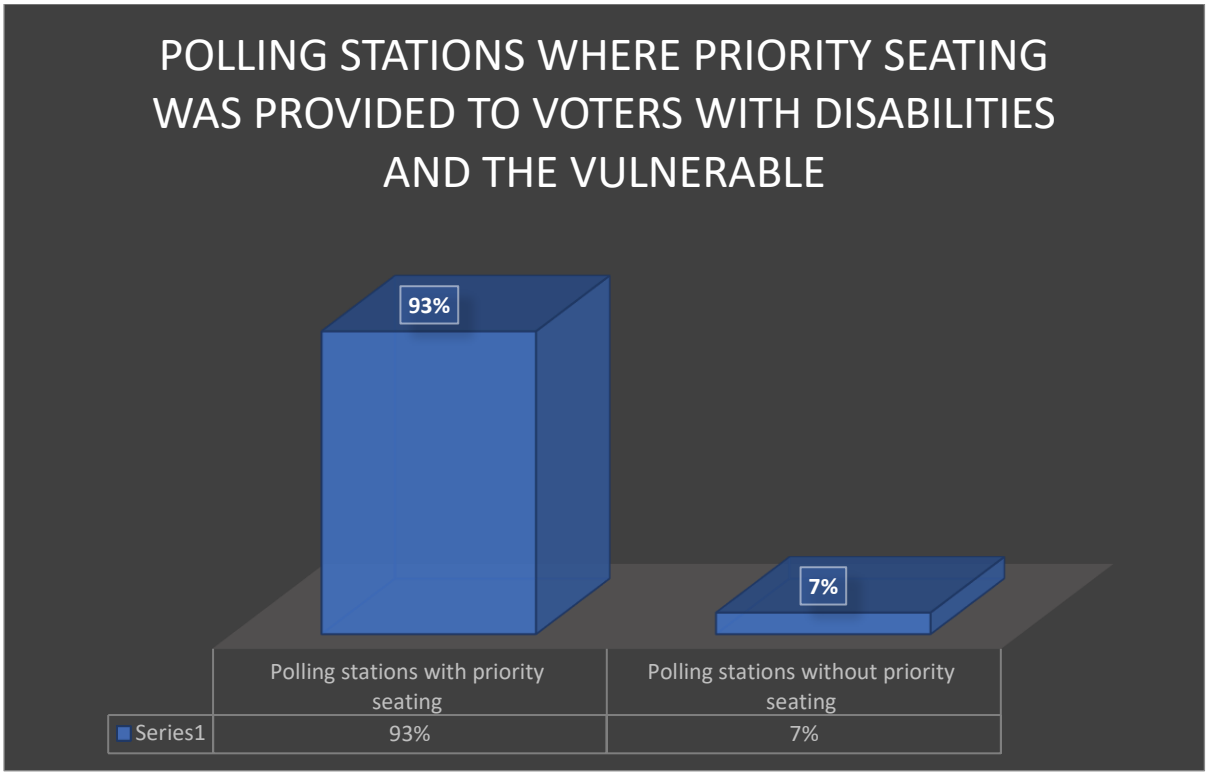
2.2 Accessible Signage – Information regarding availability of assistance to voters with disabilities

The absence of clear signages was identified as a key accessibility issue. In the chart below, the analysis show that only 68% of the voting centres monitored had clear signages. The remaining 32% either did not have at all or the signages were defaced and do not provide any information to the voter.

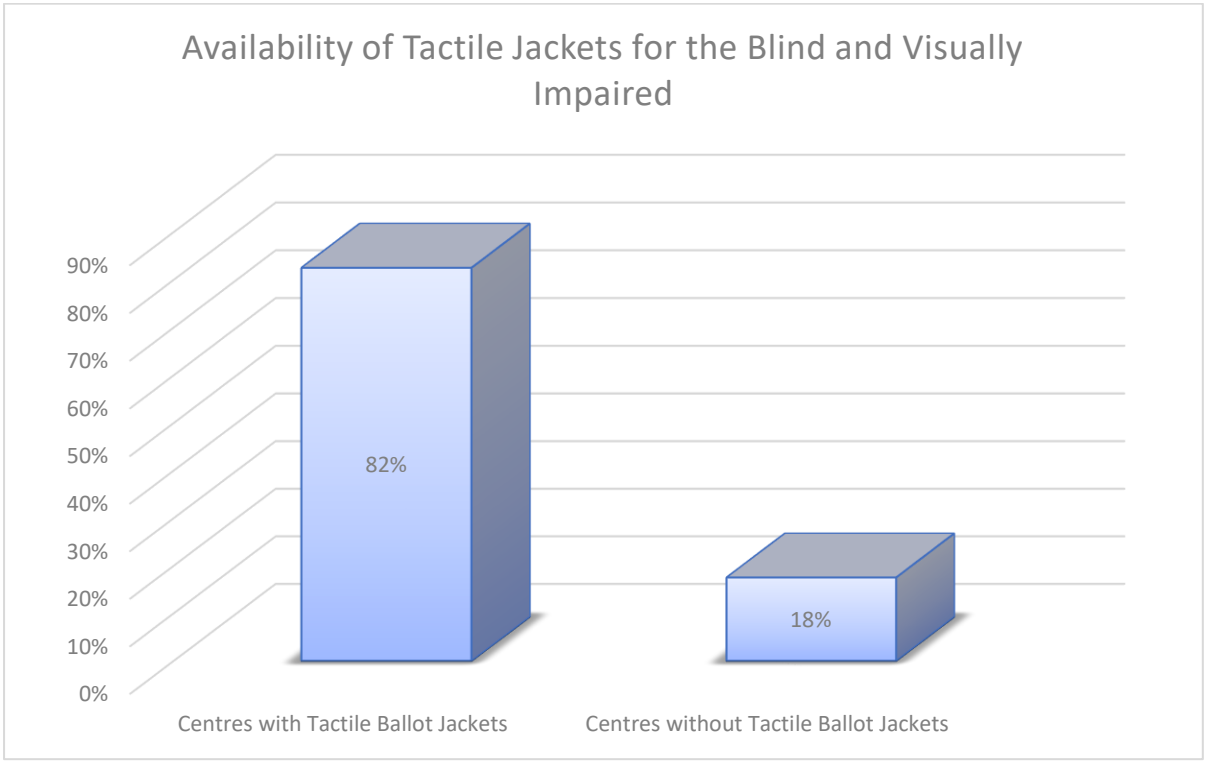


2.3 Provision of Priority Seating

The chart below presents analysis of the percentage of voting centres where priority seating was provided for voters with disabilities and other vulnerable people. The data shows that in 93% of the places monitored, these arrangements were in place to provide priority seating for the people who need them the most.

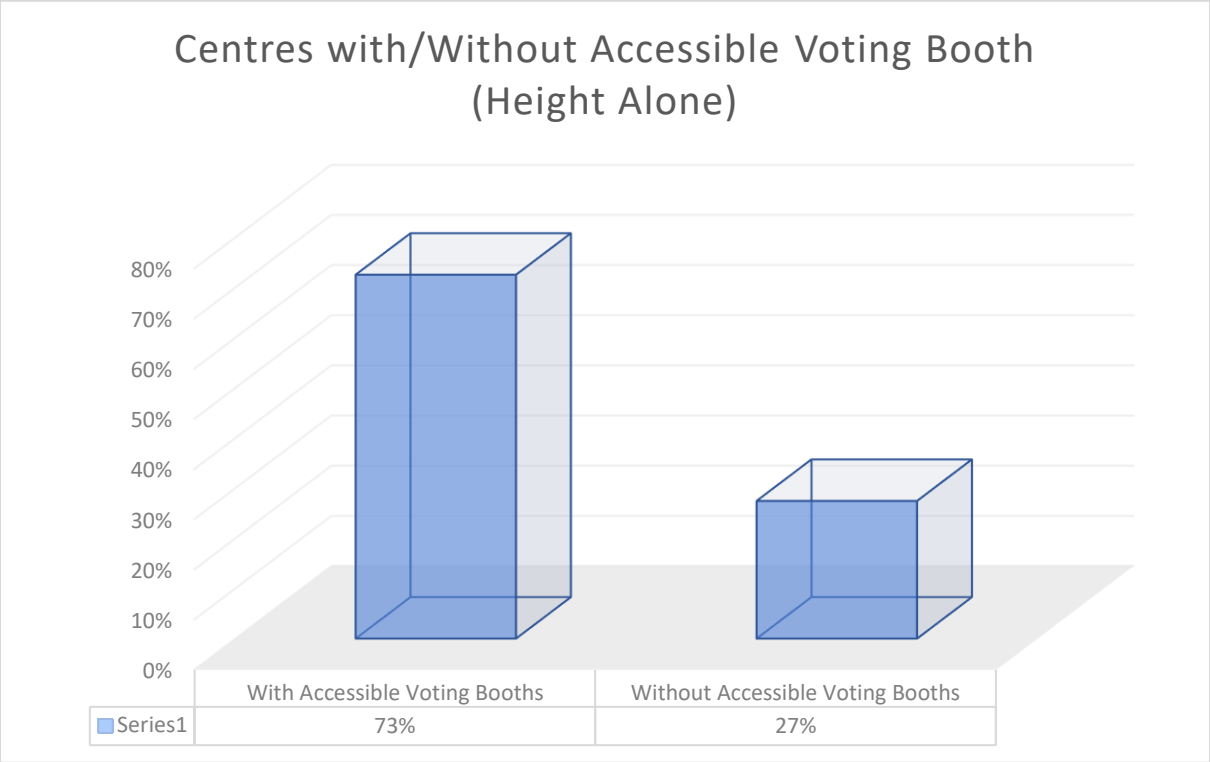


2.4 Provision of Tactile Ballot Jacket for the Blind and Visually Impaired persons
The monitored assessed whether tactile ballot jackets were available made available at the centres they visited for the Blind and visually impaired voters. The results, as shown in the chart below shows that tactile jackets were made available in only 82% of the places monitored



2.5 Assessment of the Voting Booths

How accessible the voting booths provided by the EC were assessed against a set of accessibility criteria. The monitors assess and observe issues with the heights, particularly about challenges faced by persons who use wheelchairs, those who crawl and little persons. In the chart below, which shows a graphical presentation of the data analysis, as high as 27% of the booths were found not to be accessible, on the basis of height alone.



Further analysis of the data shows that:

- Most polling booths were accessible (84%) due to flat surfaces and proper height adjustments, according to the observations made by the field monitors. Others observed that (in some 60% of the areas) wheelchair users generally had a positive experience, though some stations lacked sufficient space or ramps.
- In some instances, assistance was available and given to persons with disabilities who requested it, but this raised privacy concerns for some voters. This was observed in 41% of polling stations monitored. There were also cases (at some 10% of polling centres) where the monitors noted that Persons who crawl or have very limited mobility faced more challenges and, therefore, relied on such available assistance to enable them to vote.

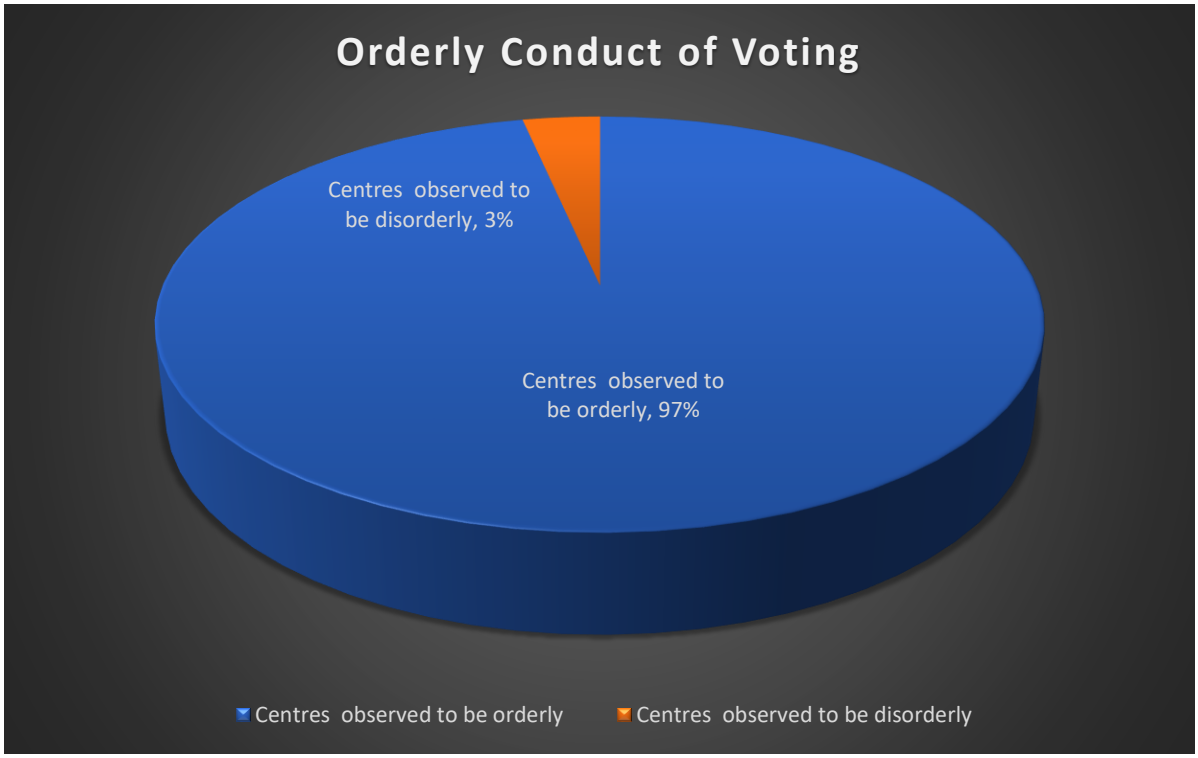
For the significant minority of 27% of polling booths that were assessed to be inaccessible for persons who use wheelchairs, those who crawl and little people, the key issues reported by the monitors include:

- The Booths were too high so the voters couldn't reach them (4.80%)
- Where the booth was placed, there was no space available for wheelchair users to manoeuvre around it (1.68%)

- Some places had environmental barriers that impeded access, including the presence of steps, gutters, steep/sloppy surfaces, sand, lumpy ground, etc (2.16%)
- The booths lacked adjustability features (i.e. fixed height, not adaptable for different users). This was noted in 1.20%
- Lack of ramps – 1.20%
- Alternative arrangements (reliance on EC officials only for assistance) – 0.72%

2.6 Orderly Conduct

The orderly conduct of the voting process promoted inclusion and active participation of persons with disabilities, who are very sensitive to chaotic environments for safety and security concerns. The figure below, which is a pie chart analysis, the data shows that at 97% of the centres, the voting process proceeded in an orderly manner. This was highly encouraging and reassured persons with disabilities about their safety being guaranteed at the voting centres.



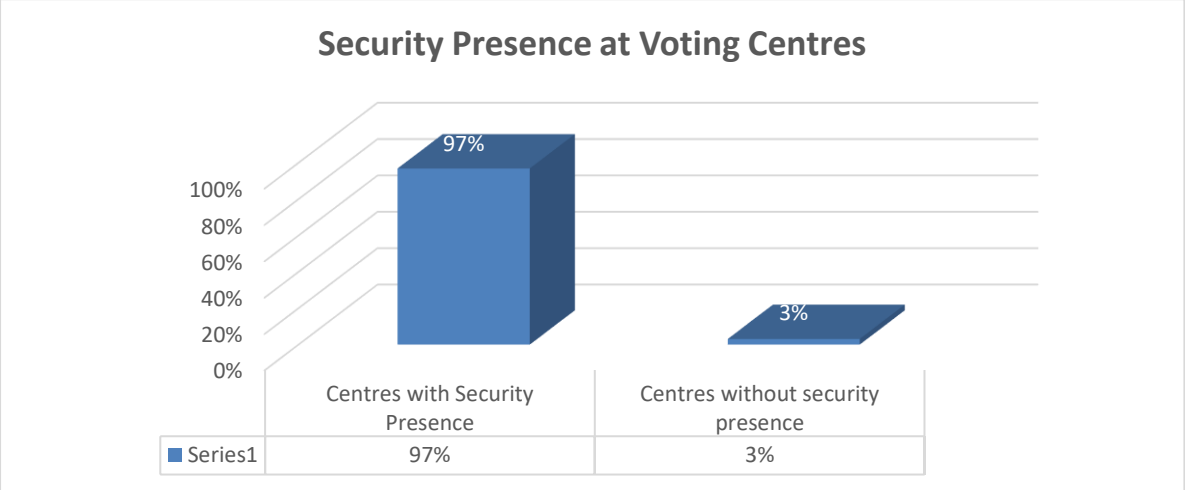
Observed Issues regarding Orderliness

- 'The polling centre was congested with voters trying to clarify the sanctity of the electoral proceedings'
- 'Some of the voters are not respecting officials'
- It was intermittently interrupted due to help being offered to persons with disabilities and the aged.
- 'The pink sheets were exchanged with other centres this leading to disruption and delay of the voting'
- 'Some of the party supporters are not respecting at all'
- 'The polling booths collapsing from strong wind'
- 'Free moved to unauthorised places'
- 'Chaos'

- ‘Lack of orderliness, they wouldn't have accurate and reliable results’
- ‘There was violence at the collation centre where some of the pink sheets carried by the presiding officers were intercepted by the people and destroyed’.
- ‘The presiding officers were heckled and brutally beaten’
- ‘Party agents argue over who to help the elderly to vote. One party believed the presiding officer was biased”.

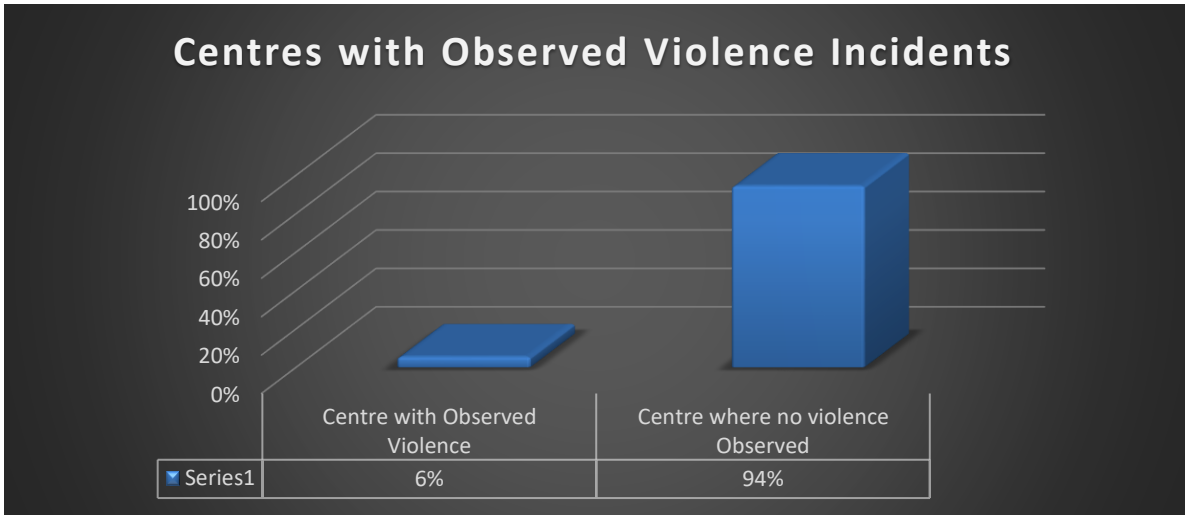
2.7 Security Presence

The guarantee of security at the voting centres was considered an enabler for persons with disabilities, encouraging them to go out and exercise their rights to participate in the voting process. The data, as presented in the bar chart below, show that there was security presence at 97% of the centres. This, coupled with the orderly manner the voting process was organised, guaranteed an inclusive environment and an enabler for the participation of persons with disabilities in the voting process.



2.8 Observation of Violent Incidents

Although anticipated that there could be incidents of violence in some areas, as these are usual occurrences in every election in the country, the field monitor observed that at some points during the voting process, some violent incidents were observed. This was the case in some 6% of the places as reported by the monitors. Given that there was security presence at 97% of the places, this data seems to suggest that these incidents of violence may have occurred in places where there was security presence. The figure below is a graphical presentation of the proportion of voting centres where violence occurred.



Example of observed Violence Incidence

- ‘Some political parties brought money to share and the other parties disagree and it has turn to misunderstanding between the two political parties and also someone cast her vote wrongly by than she have not put it inside the ballot box and she was denied to vote again and was forced to put the ballot paper into the box’
- ‘Non-availability of pink sheet caused chaos’
- ‘The polling station agents of NPP and NDC are fighting’
- ‘From a brief interview, we learnt that a candidate was there giving money to people, which almost brought conflict, and this was done near the polling station’
- ‘Some people claimed their names were being captured in the special voters' list. The officer explained that they could not vote because their names are already on the special voters' list.
- ‘There was violence at the collation centre where some of the pink sheets carried by the POs were intercepted by the people and destroyed. The POs were heckled and brutally beaten’.

3.0 KEY RECOMMENDATIONS

Based on the findings, the following measures are recommended to improve electoral participation for persons with disabilities:

a. Continuous engagement with the election management body to improve accessibility
b. Enhanced Accessibility: Ensure that polling stations are wheelchair-friendly, have adjustable voting booths, and have accessible ballot boxes.
c. Improve Tactile voting tools – tactile jacket availability, training and accessibility
d. Better Signage and Communication: Provide clear signage indicating available support services and priority arrangements.
e. Priority Arrangements: continue with the provision of priority voting (lines) for persons with disabilities and sensitise the public on the need for such accommodations.
f. Improved Communication Support: Deploy sign language interpreters (based on evidence of data) to areas with significant numbers.

g. Provision of Seating Areas: Ensure that waiting areas have sufficient seating for persons with disabilities to enhance comfort.

4.0 CONCLUSION

Ghana's electoral process has come a long way in terms of improving processes, materials and environments to make it accessible for persons with disabilities. Although results show significant progress, there are still more areas that can be improved going into the future. The findings in this report underscore the urgent need for reforms that address accessibility and inclusivity for persons with disabilities. In some 18% of the voting centres, there were election officials who were persons with disabilities, further emphasising the EC's commitment to inclusive recruitment processes that will give opportunities for qualified persons with disabilities to be part of their workforce during such crucial national processes. Implementing the list of recommendations made in this report goes a long way to create a more equitable electoral environment where all citizens can exercise their voting rights without barriers.
